HUMAN POWERED VEHICLE CHAMPIONSHIPS

You have read about them in cycling and engineering publications for several years now. The world is ready--well at least the Midwest is ready to take these ideas seriously. Starting September 29 Indianapolis will host the HPVC. The locus for the various events will be the Major Taylor Velodrome, Indianapolis Motor Speedway, and Eagle Creek Park.

For further information you may contact Indianapolis Dept. of Parks and Recreation or the IHPV Assn. Box 2068 Seal Beach CA 90740

CONGRATULATIONS!! Mark and Nancy Vincent are the proud parents of a new (March 30, 1983) baby girl, weighing in at 10 pounds 4 ounces, 21 inches long. We hope the family will join us for one of the few remaining time trials, even if he doesn't have cigars to pass out. We'll settle for the brownie scraps, Mark. We miss you!!

TULLIO CAMPAGNOLO 1901-1983

When Campagnolo died in Italy on Feb. 1, he left behind nearly 200 patents and a multi-faceted company whose products reached more than 100 countries. His first invention, the quick-release hub, was patented in 1930 and his first derailleur was introduced in 1933. His company expanded quickly to meet demand for products such as pedals, hubs, bottom brackets, chainwheel sets, fork tips, seat posts, headsets, brakes, as well as the derailleurs and quick-release units. It set up an assembly and finishing plant in Cougin, France in 1948. Other fields were then explored by Campagnolo and in 1961 he opened his first factory in Bologna to produce magnesium alloy wheels for autos and motorcycles. The same plant also produced special products for NASA. It was the first company in Europe to experiment with low-pressure melting and to apply this technology to the melting of magnesium alloys. Known today as Brevetti Internazionali Campagnolo, S.p.A., the factory in Vicenza, Italy covers 270,000 square feet and employs 700 people.

ANNUAL AWARDS BANQUET/PICNIC

It is going to happen this year? Should the club roll out the old beer barrel to celebrate another successful season of Time Trials? What's new for 1984 season? We've had some offers to do a 25-mile road race series once a month--we have lots of input from a few members. Let us know what you would like to see happen. QCW, 5070 Western Hills, 45238.

WHAT DO R. DISTLERATH, OHIO BICYCLE FEDERATION AND USCF HAVE IN COMMON? Read on:

Distlerath is soliciting support for his proposal for an OBF-USCF integration by merging Ohio USCF clubs with the Ohio Bicycle Federation. Benefits to be derived from such a merger would be stronger administration, more choice of district reps, and fewer snafu's. The only negative aspect that Distlerath anticipates is reactivation of the $.25 surcharge on race entry fees.

The club has not taken a position on this matter. Administrative support for local clubs has been extremely weak---but improving. We suggest you deal with Mr. Distlerath directly if you want to find out exactly what he intends and how his proposal will effect you. Richard Distlerath is not listed in your club directory. He is affiliated with the Racerheads, a USCF member club serving a limited number of local riders. His address is 7557 Whitehall Cr. in Westchester, OH 45069.

TIME TRIALING (Part II)

By Watson Nordquist

Prior to the race start, find out the method of starting and that order of identification relative to starting order. Some officials start the clock as the first rider takes off. In that case, the first rider off should be assigned the number "0" and the next "1", etc. Other officials start the cluck running one minute ahead of the first rider's start; if so, the first rider off is assigned the number "1", etc. In either case, the rider's start position number can then be directly deducted from the finish time to give the individual true elapsed time. But not all officials operate quite this way.

MEMBER CLUB
UNITED STATES CYCLING FEDERATION, INC.

This is important to the rider in knowing how many and what riders he must try to pass and also in knowing how to interpret the time called out by the turn-around official if this is planned.

Find out if the turn-around official is going to call out the actual time from when the clock starts running, in which case you will have to deduct your number in order to get your running time at the half-way mark. Or will the turn-around official wait until you've made the turn, he reads your number, deducts it from his watch reading and calls out your actual half-way time?

The other point is that in a large scale time trial event, with separate prize lists for various classes and categories, officials have three choices. Find out which they will use. One method is to start and finish each class or a couple of classes before starting the next. This means starting the clock again and is exceedingly confusing unless they differentiate between classes by color of the number, but use numbers each time they represent true starting order. Another method is to run all riders in sequence and with corresponding rider numbers according to performance, in which case a fast junior rider may be following a slow senior rider. (You may wish to determine where the numbers of your closest true competitors, those starting ahead of you and those behind you.) The third method is to run the riders in over-all sequence but by each class in turn--intermediate, veterans, women, etc. You should then know is there is a continuing sequence of numbers, whether a block of numbers was preassigned to each class, and if so will there be a time lapse between starting the different classes equal to unused numbers? And, in this case, you will want to know the first and last numbers that represent your class.

Another interesting aspect is that in a large-scale TT, not all classes necessarily ride the same distance. Is there a possibility that through inexperienced race management someone in a lower-age bracket will be making a turn-around at the 5-mile mark just as you reach that point?

In well managed TT's, all of the above mentioned points are covered partially by the entry blank, by posting information near the start-finish line or registration point, but mostly in a riders' meeting after sign in is completed and starting orders have been established. The officials signing in riders and assigning numbers have a right to refuse taking time to answer all such questions for every rider on an individual basis. Be alert for the call to such a meeting and be there.

In club TT's, and some sanctioned events where a large field is not expected, a 25-miler and a 10 miler are frequently run simultaneously, with the 10-miler taking off after the last 25-miler. This is a good system, assuming your last 10-miler can make his turn-around before the first 25-miler gets to that point on his return trip. In some club events, riders are not given numbers to carry on their backs but are told to call out their number in crossing the finish line. If many riders are participating in an open race, the time lapse between starting riders may be cut to 30 seconds. If a small number is competing, in a club event for example, the time lapse may be varied, as in a handicap event, so that all riders will finish theoretically within a short time frame. This does pose problems for officials, however, and is seldom used.

PRE-TIME TRIAL PREPARATION

Depending upon the time available, sign in and find out the approximate time you have before starting order and numbers are assigned. Pump up the tires on the wheels you intend to use and if necessary complete the assembly of your bicycle. Depending upon the scale of the event, do this no more than one hour before scheduled time of race start. Check out relative alignment of brake pads and rims; make certain your shifters are working properly and that limiting screws are adjusted correctly for the gear cluster you have chosen; lube if required. Take a brief spin to double-check the shifting ease. At this time find a bathroom and use it. You may not have another chance.

Make certain you have any thirst-quencher, etc. you will need. Except on very hot days, the young well-conditioned expert time trialist learns to ride a hard fast 25-mile TT without resource to any fuel except what he's stored in his body. This is an asset in that total concentration can be devoted to actual riding. Beginning or older cyclists may need refreshment even for a 10-miler but shouldn't fill a water bottle if only a few mouthfuls will suffice. Other good thirst-quenchers carried in a jersey pocket are a slice or two of lemon, a few dried apricots, or stemless grapes.

IN THIS ISSUE

1982 TIME TRIAL RESULTS AND ANALYSIS.

Jon Spicker came through and created order out of chaos. His analysis spans several pages. You can't miss it. Thanks Jon!

HPYC COMES TO INDY

Yes human powered funny cars are racing at Indianapolis at the end of this month.

AWARDS PICNIC?

DBF/USCF AFFILIATION?

CONGRATS TO MARK&NANCY. Will last season's timer of the year return to burn up the course.

HOW MANY CALORIES ARE IN YOUR FAVORITE BREW?

HIGH FIBER. If you have no fear of flatulence here's the top 20.

CAMPAGNOLO. More than expensive bicycle parts.

MEMBERSHIP ROSTER. At last, the computer spit one out for us.. Just in time to start forming that foul weather training support group.

BOOK EXCERPT. Part II of the Time Trialing Chapter of Watson's book.
